

BeLovArrium Campus Area

Until we become owners of all the pieces of land needed for the optimal realization of the project, located around the core property that will form the campus, we will not be able to indicate its exact position, not even the exact municipality involved, as this would probably bring about damaging price speculation. It is however well located on the general area of the first map below. The second map further down shows this same area in relation to Athens which is some 25 kilometers to the north.

The total area for the campus, if all acquired, will be well over 100,000 square meters.
