Why NAB better qualifies most GAY men same-sex relations

Nature gives young men, even boys, an early discovery of their sexual nature and pleasure by often giving them spontaneous pleasant sexual erections, not only at night, but even during the day at the oddest of places and times. They consequently soon start playing with their pleasant penises until, as young men, they get involved with frequent masturbation producing them a most satisfying sexual orgasm. Boys soon realize that other young men do the same, and many will often dare to try to enjoy various forms of same-sex touching or playing games together with other boys or young men. But GAY, in our culture, usually implies anal sex that is inexistent in these cases, and even inconceivable in the great majority of these joyful cases of sex playing.

While growing up, these young men are often astonished to discover that girls can also have orgasm, and provide even better sexual pleasure to a man. As such, they seek to experience this new level of sex pleasure as soon as possible with girls of their age.

But, with a girl, the virgin one in particular, boys also know that there is always the danger of a pregnancy of the girl, which boys are not yet prepared to face without serious consequences in their current young condition. So, such experiences are always seen as dangerous, hard to come (with the pun intended) and thus rare, while they themselves, as young men already full of testosterone, have a strong desire for sex on practically a daily basis. Consequently, in the meantime boys inevitably concentrate their sexual interests mainly on themselves, and on pleasant male-to-male sexual pleasure without obvious bad consequences like a pregnancy.

All the above is perfectly normal, even beautiful, and no sign of any homosexuality that would deserve most young men the qualification of being GAY as we intend it normally in our culture, which usually is intended with the implication of anal sex, or with the unpleasant and undesirable dirty mixing of divine procreative sperm with human excrements, let alone dirtying with human excrements a beautiful fully erected penis. The NAB (No-Anal-Bisexual) qualification is the most appropriate in these young men situations, with "Bisexual" meaning simply "capacity to enjoy sex with both a man partner or a woman partner", without even thinking of ever using anal sex. At the same time, this does not prevent normal young men to be left with a constant strong desire to have as soon as possible a stable heterosexual relationship with a female partner, and ideally in due time with a wife through a happy marriage with a beautiful woman.

In other words, most young men are NAB, and not GAY as we usually intend it, even when they enjoy men-to-men playing-sex-pleasure. The NAB are the great majority. The real GAY male partners are much fewer, as the ones wanting anal sex and refusing sex with women partners.

All same-sex relations, between young men in particular, should be considered natural, normal and legal, at 3 conditions: 1) no anal sex, 2) no pedophilia with partners below 14 years of age, and 3) no sexual violence. A similar situation between young women probably exists, mutatis mutandis, but only a woman could probably elaborate competently on such delicate subject.

The acceptance of this sex philosophy at the 3 above conditions would greatly diminish excessive aggressiveness of most young men, and consequently also a lot of micro-criminality in our society. More young men full of excessive testosterone would become more peaceful, and more young women would avoid sexual violence, while most of society would enjoy a more pleasant social environment with much less aggressiveness. This is the real Reform 23 of DatakAristarchy.
