

TetractArium of Governance in DatakAristarchy

LEGEND

The above TetractArium of governance replaces a Parliament, as there is no house of elected representatives in DatakAristarchy. A traditional parliament is eliminated as it is an outdated body that was necessary only before the cumulative modern inventions of the telephone, the airplane, the Internet and the current technology of perfect instant communications worldwide.

Only the central “GDS” vertical line is elected. This means only 3 governors are elected on the basis of a fully binding contract for 3 years. That contract has up to maximum 10 items to be executed, but it also includes an annex with a clear outline of any new laws to be implemented, along with their exact source of financing. During an electoral mandate, only the fully binding contract (obligatorily voted at full majority by all citizens) can be implemented, and it is even a transitory priority addendum to the constitution. There can be no surprise during a mandate in terms of new legislation or new taxation. But unpredicted emergency events can all be well taken care of through the system OBECOF (Out Binding Electoral Contract Operational Fund).
